

THE BEST OF THE BEST

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Some dance partnership combinations offer such a rare, extraordinary quality that it cannot be equalled by any other combination. This phenomenon especially happens when such combinations offer the world new ways of movement and inspiration. When such partnerships end the world is often very sad, since it will no longer enjoy the unique combination of qualities. The audiences then stay with a strong longing for the past.

Such dynamics must have applied to LOUIS VAN AMSTEL & JULIE FRYER. The dance world was very sad when they stopped their career in 1997. Since then Louis enjoyed dancing with great partners like the illustrious Karina Smirnoff and the sensational Joanna Leunis. Louis also enjoyed great experiences on stage with his dancing friends in a theatre show called "Latin Fusion" which featured not only in Holland but even on Broadway. Louis enjoyed his new skills as an artistic director and choreographer. Still an unaware longing for the glorious past kept calling. As if there was unfinished business.

In that same period Julie Fryer made good use of her time. During these years Julie had various try outs, only to find out that competing was no longer "it" for her. She invested her time in her successful teaching and coaching career, resulting in a membership of both TeamAmsterdam and GangAmsterdam. She invested her talent in a great shows together with Massimo Giorgiani & Alessia Manfredini and Peter Townsend. And she invested her time in her private relationship with Alphons. A relationship that was rewarded in 2002 with a lovely girl named Demi.

OLD FRIENDS

Very often good friends know best when it comes to knowing what you need and they tell you so too. In Louis's case it was Nina Marks who put the thought in his head of reconsidering dancing with Julie. Then TeamAmsterdam – and especially Ruud Vermeij – affirmed the idea and they became the engine to try to get these two great dancers together again.

Wouldn't it be great if they both would share the same dance floor once more? Wouldn't it be great to finish their beautiful and very rewarding active dancing careers with a bang? To finish it off with the great choreographies from the past and introduce exciting new concepts for the future? The answer was "Yes". From both parties. Full heartedly.

THE BEST OF THE BEST

Louis and Julie are now rehearsing their great choreographies from the past once more. With their knowledge and skills of today these choreographies have matured over time. Famous choreographies like "The dynamic poles" and "Cirque du Soleil" (their world winning show dance in 1996). Now it even looks better than when all that material was so refreshing and so new.

Louis and Julie were grand slam champions and double world amateur Latin champions (1994 +1995). They were world champions professional South American Show (1996). Since then they have grown and matured. Their new knowledge, insights and skills make their shows a delight to watch.

"THE BEST OF THE BEST" not only consists of their best choreographies from the past: Louis and Julie are also creating the hottest new material. And they promise to present it with their best execution ever. Still very dynamical, very energetic and also very sensitive. What a treat.
